TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Wyoming was organized as a territory in 1868 and was admitted to the Union as the forty-fourth state in 1890. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 194,402, which represents an increase of 48,437, or 33.2 per cent, over the 1910 figure.

During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Wyoming from 1870 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Wyoming has 21 counties, of which 7 have been organized since 1910. Yellowstone National Park, the greater part of which is located in the state, is independent of any county organization. (See Table 1.) The organization of the 7 new counties between 1910 and 1920 involved changes in the area of 8 others. It has been necessary, therefore, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase or decrease in total and rural population, by counties, to make the following combinations: Campbell with Crook and Weston; Goshen and Platte with Laramie; Hot Springs and Washakie with Big Horn, Fremont, and Park; Lincoln with Uinta; Niobrara with Converse.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 97,548 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 2 (see Table 1), as against 1.5 in 1910 and 0.9 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties of Wyoming are the election districts, which number 349. There are also 73 secondary divisions, comprising 10 cities, 62 towns, and 1 village. Three cities and 27 towns are coextensive with the election districts in which located, and 3 other cities and 1 town comprise 2 or more districts each. Besides these minor civil divisions, there is one Indian reservation, which, although independent of any county organization, is returned as a part of the county in which located. (See Table 2.)

POPULATION—WYOMING.

Cities.—Wyoming has 10 cities, of which Cheyenne, with a population of 13,829, is the largest. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The following summary shows, for each city having

5,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Wyoming living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 28.8 per cent in 1900 to 29.6 per cent in 1910 and decreased to 29.5 per cent in 1920.
